

Supporting Our Local Organizations

By Lydia Weber, local resident

The best part about raising money is giving it away to help our local organizations thrive. After much research and discussion, the Chapin Women in Service made the following donations:

Palmetto Girls' State: Three high school girls were provided tuition to attend the American Legion Auxiliary Palmetto Girls' State, a week-long program that simulates the operation of the state government. The simulations will include political campaigns, elections, and the political process.

Chapin Community Theatre, Inc.: A check was presented to Director Jim DeFelice to assist in funding a listening system for the theatre audience. According to the National Institutes of Health, approximately 15% of Americans 18 years and older have some trouble hearing. This system will help make the theatre accessible to all.

Good Samaritan Clinic: The Good Samaritan Clinic operates on a very tight budget. CWS presented a check to Susan Boland, Clinical Director, to help purchase much-needed equipment.

Screaming Eagles Special Needs Athletics: This organization is in the process of building a large sports complex that includes a soccer field, baseball field, and utility field. This complex will be open to all needs and abilities. A check was presented to Jenny Bowers to help with the purchase of a scoreboard for their soccer and baseball fields.

Email Chapinwomeninservice.com if you are interested in learning more about CWS; we are an IRS and state-recognized charity.
